

GEN. J. A. LOGAN'S OBSEQUIES

THE FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD IN THE SENATE CHAMBER

The Place of Burial Has Not Yet Been Determined. The funeral services to be held in the Senate Chamber, in compliance with the suggestion of Mr. Logan, for consultation. There were present Senators Cullom and Representatives Hitt, Henderson, Rowell, Payson, Springer, Thomas, Townsend, and Nease. Mr. Logan's wishes with regard to the funeral arrangements were made known by the members of the committee who had been conferring. Her inclinations favored a funeral in the Senate Chamber after the reassembling of Congress and interment in the Congressional Cemetery here. The subject was discussed, but no definite conclusion was reached. Further informal conferences have taken place with the members of the delegation, and it is now the opinion that the funeral services will be held on Friday next in the Senate Chamber, and that the remains will immediately thereafter be taken to Chicago. Senator Sherman was at the Logan mansion this afternoon, and was in consultation with Mr. Logan, who sought his advice regarding the funeral arrangements. He has already made the selection of a committee to represent the Senate, but withholds its announcement until the arrangements shall be determined upon.

Gen. Beale this afternoon received a despatch from Mr. Walker Blaine, in Chicago, announcing the receipt by him of a telegram from Mr. Blaine, expressing his regret that Mr. Blaine should represent him at the funeral. It is supposed that Mr. Blaine made the request upon the assumption that the remains would be taken at once to Chicago and that the obsequies would take place in that city.

At 5 P. M. a guard of honor, sent by the Secretary of War, consisting of a sergeant and four privates, accompanied by a band of music, equipped reported at Calumet place. A sentry was placed at the front door and another at the rear. The members of the delegation, a guard of marines, to be sent by the Secretary of the Navy, will report to-morrow morning.

Mrs. Logan's residence was to-day connected by wire with the main Washington office of the United States Army. The telephone lines in the house were freely placed at the disposal of the family. Mr. Logan's private secretary, Mr. and Mrs. Logan, were in the house.

Arrangements have now been made to accept the tender by the Secretary of the Navy of a guard of marines, who will render such assistance as may be required in the funeral services. The tender was contained in the following letter:

WASH., Dec. 22, 1908. My dear Mr. Logan: The high position which you have occupied in the history of the United States Army and the interest in the war and naval service, exhibited by you, have been a source of inspiration to me. I am proud to have been associated with you in the service of my country. I am sure that your example will be a source of inspiration to me in the future.

A guard of marines will report at the house to-morrow morning. The members of the delegation in the Senate Chamber are unquestionably the most commanding in the history of the United States. Standing about due north of the center of the chamber, the body of the deceased is the highest of that circle of bluff which was expected by the fathers to limit the growth of the capital. The body of the deceased is the highest of that circle of bluff which was expected by the fathers to limit the growth of the capital. LEWIS RECOVERS TEN KNIGHTS

NO TRIAL FOR HIS DEATH IN BROOKLYN

The conference between President Lewis of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company and thirteen employees representing the eleven lines of the company in reference to the list of grievances presented by the Executive Committee of the Empire Protective Association, was resumed yesterday afternoon at the main office of the company at the foot of Fulton street. Major Whitney, who had been selected as mediator, presided, and Messrs. Howe, Husted, and Lyman, directors of the company, and Mr. F. J. Donovan of the State Board of Arbitration were present. When the conference broke up on Friday, the sixth clause in the proposed agreement, and the only one which presented a serious obstacle, had been under consideration. It was this:

Sixth—That no employee shall be discharged without a good and sufficient reason being given him or his representative. And any employee when called into the office on any complaint shall have a full and impartial hearing, and, if proved innocent, shall be paid for all time lost.

Mr. Lewis proposed yesterday that this clause be passed over for the present. Mr. Watson, I think it is best for us to take up this clause at once. It is the most vital of all, and the men are most interested in it. We should discuss and settle it now, as it is the main point in contention.

Mr. Lewis agreed to this, and at his suggestion it was understood that the President of the company was the person to decide on the question whether the reason for a discharge was good and sufficient, and that the Executive Board of the company should have something to say in this matter. MAJOR D. W. LYMAN'S DEATH

SUDDEN TAKING OFF OF HEALTHY CHIEF OF PROSECUTION

Dark Rumors Concerning the Cause of Death. A General Will—The Wife of Mr. Lyman Made the Burialday Legend. PROVIDENCE, Dec. 22.—The main topic of discussion here, ever since the Goodell divorce suit, among the upper circles of society has for some days past been the death of the Hon. Daniel W. Lyman, Mr. Lyman, as his name indicates, was descended from some of the first families of Rhode Island. One of his ancestors was the Gov. Wadsworth who sent out an expedition from Newport to capture certain pirates who were devastating the coast. The expedition was successful, and the pirates, about thirty in number, were hanged all together at Newport. For this exploit the then sovereign of England presented Gov. Wadsworth with a silver cup. Another ancestor was Gov. Joseph Wadsworth, who was descended from office at the time of the American Revolution. On the other side Mr. Lyman was descended from one of the captains of Ticonderoga, and the sword which a British officer surrendered on that occasion to Mr. Lyman's ancestor hangs to-day among the relics in the Lyman mansion in North Providence.

Lyman—he was better known as Major Lyman—was an only child and inherited a very large estate, consisting chiefly of property on Westminster street, which is the Broadway of Providence. He was 43 years of age and, as far as appearances indicated, was the eyes of his friends, was likely to live another forty years. He was rather a favorite in society, and his friends were numerous. He was a bachelor, but was always exceedingly popular. He was a man of great energy and a gentlemanly to everybody. A though he lived in North Providence, he usually spent the winter in the city of New York, where he was the house of his aunt, Mrs. Lyman, on Waterman street. Major Lyman was a well-known figure in the city of New York, where he was a member of the city club and a frequent visitor to the city. He was a man of great energy and a gentlemanly to everybody. A though he lived in North Providence, he usually spent the winter in the city of New York, where he was the house of his aunt, Mrs. Lyman, on Waterman street.

On Monday morning, Dec. 20, the public were shocked to read in the Providence Journal that Major Lyman had died. The death was sudden and unexpected. The cause of death was not known at the time. The death was sudden and unexpected. The cause of death was not known at the time.

THE BLOOD-STAINED OPERA

Nobody called at Hoboken Police Headquarters yesterday to claim the blood-stained opera gown which was found in the room of the actress who was killed in the opera house.

The National Opera had a grand reception in Brooklyn at the Academy last night. That intensely American city surrendered to it, so far as the music-loving part of the population was concerned. Youths with tickets for sale were as multitudinous as newsmen, and carried news of the first night so far into the streets near the Academy that few pedestrians could fail to know that America's own and only native opera had come to town. The trunks, chests, and packing boxes full of costumes, armor, and other properties that could not find room indoors after all the spare room was filled lined the sidewalk and helped carry the opera to the Academy. The opera house was crowded to the roof, and the audience was as enthusiastic as the actors. The opera was a success, and the audience was as enthusiastic as the actors.
